

Woud She *

She/Not I has windows and doors and a love of water
She/Not I has ~~people asking, and~~ a want to be the best
She/Not I has a wet and dry area with a generous surface, and wrinkles
She/Not I has wellbeing, but black works equally well, though childhood memories of her is making white
She/Not I wanted to escape the rat
Wanted to have a gin and wild mint
She/Not I has a white smock top and she oozes vitality without being Writing came easily
What we put
What we put with
Will put them right
She/Not I will squeeze the water out of the words
With a willingness to be in the water
Wallpapers observe where you sit
She/Not I is an on-when-you-want it: off when wanted; a washbasin with separate getting wet
With more hours of sunshine She/Not I was the right colour for the room
With more hours
We're so
What
Whimsical
We sit under the trees
We're a huge Woud
The Woud; Womersley
She/Not I found the real wood wrong with one
Writes: breath work; tantra, life's writing
When making 'the whale' She/Not I is wider for extra comfort; warming, slow
Week winter wrap in white cushions to wooden frame
A divan with or without wit
We create what you'd like to achieve from the day
We eat and whether we watercolour it will warm
We'll get one when we move in the world
We tend to drink
We don't tend to whisk together the wet winter months
We long for during the long cold walks
Or just want white with warmth
She/Not I is what you think when perfectly you put together your perfect winter
Wonders are perfect
She/Not I is worth a try
Mouth-watering
Wild themed activities for all, as well as single subjects
Window dressings should look away in wardrobes and stir the wet
Why not cut it into walls and wooden cabinetry
She/Not I would
When you steep white-washed fine weave winter months She/Not I will know
When I ask if it's a warm day you might wave of a trend
Warmer; warming
Which will when it comes while is starting to wane
She/Not I is what is says
Windows which guests leave
With a while will
We're not blessed with the weather
